

Handwritten text in a cursive script, likely a legal or administrative document. The text is dense and covers most of the page, with some lines appearing to be crossed out or heavily corrected. The script is characteristic of the late 15th or early 16th century.

Handwritten text at the top of the right page, possibly a header or a specific clause of the document. It begins with "Ego" and "inter".

Four distinct signatures or seals in cursive script, arranged horizontally across the middle of the right page. They appear to be official or personal signatures.

A line of handwritten text, possibly a date or a reference to a specific event, located below the signatures.

Several smaller signatures or seals on the right side of the right page, including one that appears to be a large, stylized initial or mark.
